The Treaty

Washington, May 25—The Senate at 10 o'clock this evening, after a continuous executive session of nine hours, by the requisite two-thirds vote advised the President to negotiate an additional article to the Treaty of Washington on the basis recently proposed by the British Government, though in form somewhat different from it, but not altered in principle, the amendment being designed to secure a reciprocity of obligations on the part of both Governments without detriment to either, and without placing the United States in the attitude of receding from their position in compliance of the requirement of the British Government.

Indian Hostilities.

How the 'Question' Changes.

It has been charged that the Republican party has formed a conspiracy with a railroad monopolist to enable him to get possession of the locks at Willamette Falls or to defeat their construction, and it is pretended that there is one of the issues to be tried in the election. Yet the owners of the locks have all the time been trying to sell them to the monopolist. When this was charged, the Herald denied it, but it is noticeable that the owners of the locks have not denied it. And now even the Herald virtually admits it. On Thursday last it pronounced the whole statement that the locks had been offered to Holladay absolutely false from beginning to end. On Saturday it so modified its denial as to declare that it "didn't care a snap whether the locks had been offered for sale or not." And the statement was added that that was "not the question."

If it was not the question what did you raise it for? You declared that the real struggle of this canvass was to keep the locks out of Holladay's hands. Yet the company had been persistently trying to sell them to him. You are right in saying that this is "not the question" of the election. But you tried to make it so, and would have stuck to it had we not exploded the pretense.

With our neighbor the "question" is continually changing. It is in perpetual flux. When the canvass opened he was sure that the real "question" was that of limiting by law, rates of transportation on railroads. That "question" was exploded, and our neighbor, after working for three weeks in a vain attempt to form a new argument out of the fragments, abandoned the job, and for a month has not referred to it. Since then the "question" has been whether the railroad monopolist should be permitted to get possession of the locks or not. The people were appealed to to prevent it by their votes in the election, though all the time the owners of the locks had been trying to sell them to the "railroad king." And now the Herald tells us that this is "not the question." When it succeeds in discovering what the "question" is, we shall inform our readers. A week is yet to elapse before the election, and with the Herald the "question" is likely to change several times more during that period.

Yamhill Sees It.

It is remarkable how the Democratic party, which started out in this canvass on a career of resolute opposition to corporations, has veered round until it has become simply an advocate and champion of a corporation, and has subordinated every other interest, political and material, to the service of the only corporation which has ever fleeced the people of Oregon. That this fact is as well understood elsewhere as it is in Portland, the following from the excellent paper of Yamhill, the West Side, fully attests:

> Besides the question of electing Grover to the Senate; that of electing a Legislature in the interest of the great corporation which is building the Canal and Locks at Oregon City is the only one to which Democrats are paying any attention. Two thirds of every speech they make, and one-half of the editorial matter of every paper they own, is devoted to the defense of this corporation and to advocating its claims on the people of this State. The money filched from the people two years ago is being used to pay itinerant speakers and to support partisan papers in order to convince voters that this corporation is a good one, and all others bad; that it is wrong to assist or encourage any other enterprise, but this one is entitled to all it wants; that there should be no "privileged classes" but Democratic politicians, and "no privileged capital" but that of Teal, Miller, Grover & Co.

This is a clear perception of the situation. The West Side holds up a mirror in which Teal, Grover and Miller's candidates in Multnomah county can see themselves. Judge Shattuck and R. J. Ladd are mortal enemies of all corporations,—except the one they are tied to. They think, as their remarks on Saturday evening indicated, that there can be nothing good in any corporation, except the one that bought its subsidy (as the Farmer declares) through the last Legislature, and violated the School Fund to get it. This corporation is to be tenderly dealt with, and to have all it wants. But all others, even to a common partnership to manufacture wooden ware at Oregon City, are dangerous impediments to the growth and well-being of the State. In other counties, as it appears, candidates have been nominated for the Legislature directly in the interest of this corporation which is now bleeding the State and is clamoring for more. The West Side continues:

> The people of this State are now paying to this corporation fourteen thousand dollars a year in the shape of interest. They have agreed to put their necks under its yoke to pay tribute at a heavy rate on all their shipments, to build the works for the company and then to buy them. This ought to be enough to do for one monopoly, but it seems they are not satisfied. They want more "favor" from the Legislature, not only as to time but as to "success," and this they say they want "irrespective of former party affiliations." Now we submit it to the good sense of the voters of this county, "irrespective of party affiliations," whether this grasping cormorant of a corporate monopoly has not had already all the favor they ought to ask, and more too. But they have the presumption to send their agent into Yamhill county, to attend a convention and make it an issue in the campaign that the Legislative ticket must be in the interest of this scheme. They ask that all political issues be dropped or made secondary to this question, and that men be elected to office solely because they favor the plans of Jo Teal and John F. Miller to make money out of the "lock game." We are ready to meet them on that issue and can beat them, too, whether they disband the Democratic party or not. They may buy voters as they did two years ago, and they may turn out our men as they did then, but we can beat them at the polls and they know it.

The opposition or Democratic ticket in Multnomah county, like that in Yamhill, is wholly in the interests of this corporation, and is pledged to do its service. Consistent gentlemen, these, to accuse their opponents of being under "sinister influences." This corporation, which has already taken from the State $75,000 more than another company wanted for the work, and which, after getting the principal, is receiving annual interest on the money, wants further legislation and desires to control the Legislature. Hence the piebald ticket in this county. This corporation set its agents at work and got out this ticket, and then procured for it the endorsement of the Democratic Convention. Is there any wonder that Democrats refuse to be whipped into supporting it?

Citizenship Conferred.

Some days ago the telegraph announced that Congress had passed and the President had signed the bill admitting to full rights of citizenship to persons born in the Territory of Oregon of foreign parents, prior to the treaty of 1846. The purpose of this bill is to meet cases like that of McKay, a man descended from a British father and Indian mother, who was not permitted to vote at the election two years ago. All persons of this class are now voters, and judges of election will be required to take notice of the law and govern themselves accordingly. The following is the law on the subject:

> That all persons born in the district of country formerly known as the Territory of Oregon, and subject at this time to the jurisdiction of the United States, are citizens of the United States in the same manner as if born elsewhere in the United States.

An individual named [illegible] Beal, who was on the Dolly Varden ticket for Superintendent of Schools for Multnomah county, has withdrawn. He frankly confesses his unfitness for the position. He need not have withdrawn; the office would have given him no trouble, he would have been beaten from 500 to 800 votes. In his letter of withdrawal, addressed to the Herald, he opposes the Republican ticket because, as he alleges, it was corruptly nominated, yet he withdraws in favor of Rev. Mr. Eliot, one of the nominees on that ticket. Mr. Beal therefore starts in as a "reformer" and comes out as an endorser of "corruption." The real reason of Mr. Beal's course is yet to be explained. He is and has long been a leading Good Templar, and doubtless supports the Dolly Varden ticket in order that he may further the cause of prohibition.

The last issue of the Farmer comes to us bristling with terrible charges of corruption against the Legislature of Oregon during the last two sessions. It declares that the law-making power of the State was bought up by Ben Holladay, and run in his peculiar and personal interests. This is a grave accusation against legislative bodies two-thirds Democratic. It can hardly afford much encouragement to people to try for a third time a Democratic Legislature.

> You talk reform, but you practice corruption and rascality.—Herald.

This is addressed to its opponents by a paper which has not yet mentioned the Grant county embezzlement of $15,000. Hadn't you better cease talking reform so loudly while you are so studiedly screening corruption and rascality in your party? Come, now!

POLITICS IN MARION COUNTY.

SALEM, OREGON, May 25, 1872.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

This has been a field day among the politicians, and as politics constitutes our principal stock in trade just now, it may be as well to chronicle the events and dispose of the killed, wounded and missing.

The announcement that Attorney General Williams would speak here to-day called out one of the largest and finest audiences this vicinity is capable of, and we flatter ourselves that Salem and its surroundings can furnish audiences composed of rather excellent material. There is no other man who can draw the attention which is paid to Judge Williams, simply because no other public man in our State has to so great a degree the confidence and respect of the people and the ability to discuss the affairs of the nation with them. There were many in from the country, as also from the adjoining precincts of Polk county, and from various parts of Marion county. The towns-people turned out largely and there were hundreds of ladies in the audience, which filled Reed's Opera House and listened for near three hours with close attention.

REVIEWS DEMOCRATIC LEGISLATION.

The distinguished speaker, while not apologizing in the least for being here, explained that it was customary for each head of a Department to take a month's recreation during the year, and this was a season when there was little business of importance before the Department, so that the Solicitor General could easily attend to it. He reviewed the evil legislation of 1872 somewhat at length; showed that its principal acts—litigant and swamp land swindles—were borrowed from California, whilst the people of that State had already become disgusted with the corruption and had since repealed the obnoxious statutes, having first repealed the rules of Democracy. The Portland Police bill and the Canal and Locks were duly overhauled, and he showed, in most forcible manner, the evils of all these measures, and the actual fraud and dishonesty upon the people. It is impossible, in the limits of ordinary correspondence, to touch the points made, much less do justice to them. It is not necessary to more than say that the speaker did justice to himself and his subject. There was a trace of sarcasm in the way he told how Grover made a special effort with the Department of the Interior to have the swamp land claim to Lake Labish confirmed in favor of John F. Miller. He damaged our Executive considerably by reading his correspondence with the General Land Office in relation to Oregon swamp lands, showing that he has been trying to have instructions sent from Washington to the Land Offices of this State to disregard homestead applications until the State's right to swamp land is settled, the lands of that description described and located, and the swamp land cormorants all comfortably gorged with plunder.

WILSON AND BURNETT.

Coming down to the matters of the present campaign, Judge Williams drew a forcible contrast between the opposing candidates for Congress. Wilson had been well and thoroughly educated, and had attained excellence and distinction in the law, and is well known for ability and integrity. Burnett he very happily described as a "good natured, easy going, slack twisted, sort of a fellow," a sort of "Now I lay me down to sleep" kind of a man, who had been a County Judge, and was a very honest gentleman, while an old fossil Democrat, but would never make Oregon known or felt. J. S. Smith, he said, had shown sound ability. Slater, even, was a man of energy, if not of great brain power, and far superior to Burnett. This picturing of "Honest John" was a great success and convulsed the audience.

Judge Williams answered successfully the cry against the Republicans of being allies of Ben Holladay, by showing that while that gentleman didn't come here with any Republican proclivities, he was driven by Democratic abusiveness to take sides with our party in self defense. He disposed of the Democratic clamor against himself, on railroad matters, by showing that the "Williams amendment" became afterwards the greatest standard of of Democratic faith on the railroad question.

DEFENDS GENERAL GRANT.

In reply to the attacks made on the President, and the vituperation against him, he reviewed, with words of burning power, and with a passion of eloquence which showed how earnestly he felt his subject, what Grant's career was as a General in the field, and the honest success of his administration as head of the nation. This portion of his speech thrilled and electrified every generous heart and was received with an enthusiasm which showed how deeply the subject interested all the sympathies of his audience. Fair hands showered boquets upon the orator while the multitude was thundering its applause.

A BUSHWHACKER.

The foregoing cannot be considered any fair showing of the speech made by Judge Williams, and is only intended as a brief sketch upon some points. The announcement that he would speak called forth other announcements. One from a man named Sullivan, living either in Portland or Polk county, or both, whose position at the present time seems to be a narrow-minded hate of Williams, based on no one knows what, and not dangerous, owing to the limited ability involved in the enterprise. This gentleman has an ambition which was only moderately satisfied a few days since when he was knocked down the Court House stairs at Dallas, by a man who supposed he was a client of his, but found himself mistaken. He had his revenge, however, and Sullivan probably came over here to vent his spleen on our friend the Attorney General. At any rate he enlisted considerable Democratic sympathy for his undertaking, and his intention to "reply" to Williams was very industriously placarded over the town. Of course it didn't make any difference to Williams how many Sullivans took the field, or how many Democrats back him in it. That gentleman finished his speech at his leisure, and retired amid the plaudits of his friends, and as he left Sullivan jumped up into notice.

This man Sullivan claims—it seems, more is the pity—to be a Republican, and all I have to say about his speech is that he fizzed and spurted for an hour or so, a contemptible and excited tirade of low, personal, weak abuse of Judge Williams. It won't bear repetition, nor does it need criticism. It served its purpose in gratifying the morbid taste of the noisy Copperheads, who were professedly present to egg him on to the effort, and knock their heels and the floor together, with delight. It is a melancholy thing to see a man make an ass of himself, and yet it is astonishing to see how easily some men can do it. Sullivan does it uncommonly well. To-morrow morning the Mercury will praise him to the skies, and yet, only a week or so ago, it told with infinite gusto how a pettifogger of his name got knocked down and stamped on. Such is politics. Judge Williams spoke of "curs barking at his heels who would bite if their ability was equal to their malice." I recollected that as I waited a few minutes to see and hear Sullivan tear his passion to tatters. The knock-down argument was exhausted, however, at Dallas Court House.

RUSHING TO THE RESCUE.

The news that Williams was coming here called in the hostile forces from distant fields of conflict, as if they thought the citadel was in danger of being captured in their absence. Jim Nesmith, who made his campaign in 1870 by furnishing all the low-lived slang and slander that disgraced the Press, came rushing home from Southern Oregon, more to get out of Williams' way than to meet him, however, for he never went within a hundred miles of him by railroad, and never was refused a challenge to debate. That is all bosh. Williams is not afraid of a pole-cat or a blackguard, of course, and would have met Nesmith in debate had that valorous defiler of public morals come near enough. Grover, too, has come tearing home, leaving Jim Fay and Ben Hayden to do what they will with his Senatorial prospects in Jackson and Josephine, while he should rally the faithful to the standard here in Marion. As soon as he "arrove"—as his chief aid, Bill Watkinds, has it—he put out a hand-bill that he would reply to Attorney General Williams in the evening. So there was a gathering of the clans after supper to hear the distinguished "I and Gilfrey" speak his piece.

"OUR INTERESTS" VS. MONOPOLY.

So in the evening we had Governor Grover, the great Panjandrum himself, laboring to spread the Democratic net and catch gudgeons. To hear him tell it, the Canal and Locks bill had no flaw in it that human ingenuity could discover or honestly prevent. For an hour and a half did that audience walk up and down the falls with him, as he tried hard to build the dam and locks. To do the man justice, he made out a reasonable case, viewed from his standpoint, in favor of the legality of the Act as far as the use of the fund was concerned, but it took him an unmerciful long time to do it. Where he failed, utterly and lamentably, was in relation to the $75,000 bonus paid above what the P. T. Co. would have done it for. He was monstrous cheeky and pettifogged his case fearfully, trying to make out that the P. T. Co.'s proposition meant something it did not say. According to him, A. A. McCully, President of that company, didn't know what he swore to. He actually read the proposition and said it meant directly contrary to what it said. And that crowd of boys and regular liners would stamp when Grover looked unusually wise, as if he had all his wisdom in their heels.

The swamp land question came in for half an hour's labor, but he forgot all about the men whose homes, located eleven years ago, are claimed as swamp lands, and forgot to answer the charge that he had claimed for the State that the Swamp Land Act shall date from 1860, so as to make these homesteads liable to swamp land claims. He tried to make a point that these lands might go to the railroad if not secured to the State, while, of course, the railroad has no claim to swamp lands. He worked up a pathetic case against the Attorney General that he was an enemy to Oregon because he was pleading with the Land Office at Washington to delay decision of this swamp land question until the matter could be better understood as to the rights of actual settlers.

He subsided, without having found time or inclination to defend the Litigant law or the Portland Police bill, or to assault the character of General Grant, or to defend that of "Honest John Burnett." It kept him busy to make a case for the canal and locks and the swamp land grab game, but he did his level best, and John F. Miller feels better, though there is no sensible reason why he should.

MARION.

A gang of Chinese laborers in Louisiana, who had taken umbrage at the conduct of a negro overseer, surprised their employer one morning recently by marching in solemn file up to his mansion, bearing on their shoulders a dark object. This proved to be the obnoxious darkey, securely bound with many cords, whom they deposited on the piazza, nearly frightened to death, with the words, "Too muchee niggah, too muchee."

Still Another Remarkable Cure.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10, 1871.

DR. A. M. LOARYE & Co.—For two years I was afflicted with Rheumatism, and tried all the known remedies, experiencing nothing more than a temporary relief, the disease always returning. Some months since I concluded to take your Oak Weed Remedy, and the result was a Speedy and Permanent Cure, the Rheumatism being entirely eradicated from the system. The "OAK" is also a Tonic of the very highest order. It increases the appetite, and tones the body. I cheerfully bear testimony to the good effect upon me, and feel sure that it will do all you claim for it.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 27 1872

ACCIDENT AT OREGON CITY.—On last Friday about 11 o'clock A M, a man named John Long, while engaged in blasting rocks at the Willamette Falls met with a very severe accident, which may result fatally. He had just completed tamping the blast with fine particles of stone, adjusted the fuse and ignited one end. Before he could fairly get from over the drill hole the fire was transmitted through about nine feet of fuse and the blast went off. Long was blown about six feet from the ground and fell backward among some sharp pointed stones. His head was severely cut with a sharp corner and his back and shoulders badly bruised. The entire contents of the blast were blown into his face which is badly burned and lacerated to a frightful extent by the fragments of rock. It is feared that his sight has been totally destroyed. The unfortunate man is well known in this city, and owns a ranch across the river. He has been engaged at the Falls for the past six months, being a very careful and experienced blaster. He is about 30 years of age and has no family. Some of his friends were down on Saturday, endeavoring to make arrangements to have him taken to the County Hospital or to the St Joseph's Hospital, Vancouver where he could be properly provided for. The fuse which was the cause of the [illegible] is said to be a new kind and had never been used before at that place. A short time after the occurrence a trial was made to test the fuse. A coil nearly one hundred feet in length was touched off at one end. In almost an instant of time the fire ran from one end to another. It was therefore deemed dangerous, to the highest possible degree, to use in connection with the blasting operations, and was destroyed. At the latest accounts Long was a little better, but hopes of his recovery are still quite doubtful.

THE TURNERS.—Yesterday the Turners of this city gave their first festival at the Canyon Garden. As was announced, the most extensive preparations had been made at the grounds to render those who attended comfortable, and also in the character and variety of their order of exercises.

At 9 o'clock A M the procession formed at their hall, corner of Second and Jefferson streets, and after marching through the principal streets, headed by the band, proceeded to the Gardens, at the southwestern suburbs of the city. Soon after their arrival at the grounds, an overture was played by the band, a song by the singing section of the Turners, and the oration by Mr Paul [illegible], editor of the Deutsche Zeitung. The [illegible] is spoken of in very complimentary terms by those who understand the German language. At the conclusion of these exercises, a grand concert was given by the band, during which a variety of gymnastic exercises were gone through with by the Turners and pupils. The performances were appropriately interspersed with songs by the favorite Tyrolean Warblers and the singing section. The remainder of the day was spent in the various sports and games, in which a great many ladies and gentlemen participated. Prominent among the most enjoyable features of the day, was the dancing, feasting on ice cream and lunching. The grounds selected were all that could have been desired, there being an abundance of cool shade and pure water. A number of swings and seats had been provided to contribute to the pleasure of all. A very large number of our citizens visited the garden during the day. We heard no expressions but those of unqualified satisfaction at the manner in which the festival was conducted. It was one of the proud successes of the season.

A SENSIBLE VIEW.—The question has been asked many times, "Are we going to celebrate the Fourth this year?" To assist the vision of our citizens to discern some of the benefits to accrue, and to take advantage of the same in time, we publish the following paragraph taken from the Walla Walla Statesman: "Last year Portland ignored the Fourth, and when it was too late the merchants discovered that they were out of pocket by the operation. Taught by experience, they will pursue a different course this year." The above is certainly a correct view of this matter. It remains to be seen if our citizens have profited by the "experience" of the last year, and if they will improve the opportunity now presented.

AT THE RINK.—At 4 o'clock this evening, the Turners will form at their hall, and march in procession to the Rink, headed by music. On their way there they will pass through some of the principal streets. At 5 o'clock, will commence [illegible] for prizes by the Turners and pupils. [illegible] to 8 o'clock there will be an intermission, which will follow a grand musical entertainment of three parts. The evening will conclude with a ball. During the last will take place the distribution of prizes awarded those who excel in gymnastics, by the Judges appointed.

SAILED.—The steamer Ajax sailed for San Francisco on Saturday evening. She took away a large amount of freight and the following passengers: H Newhouse, D P Mitchell and wife, E C Denning and wife, E Mirror, Mrs S Taylor, W G Nelson, Mrs L Singer, Rev C M Blake, wife and child, W H Paine, W F Hitchcock, W H N Stiles, T J Moore, wife and four children, C Wilson, C H Ohm, Colonel J H Halsan, O Keegan, Mrs M Westfall, Mrs Rugs Howard, Miss McNamara, J Vidler, Fred Lee and brother, William Scott, Wells, Fargo & Co's messenger, and 25 in steerage.

NEAT FLAG.—The members of the G A R have recently had made to order a beautiful flag, to be used in their hall and on all public occasions. It is what is known as a "regulation flag." The size is 5x11 feet. The material used is a fine quality of red and white muslin. There are twelve white stars in a circle and one in the center, making thirteen, on a field of blue. The colors are very bright and beautiful. Below the stars are the letters, "G A R," worked in yellow moire antique silk. The flag was purchased by subscription.

PICNIC.—To-morrow morning the Sunday school connected with the Catholic Church in this city will hold their picnic. The pupils accompanied by parents and friends, will take the steamer Vancouver and proceed to Vancouver and return in the evening. A band of music has been engaged for the occasion. The steamer will leave the foot of Washington street at 10 o'clock.

NO PREPARATIONS.—Many of the interior papers persist in the statement that the citizens of Portland are making extensive preparations to celebrate the 4th of July. It may all be very correct, but we have failed to catch wind of any preparations. To the contrary we are sorry to say that even the initiatory steps have not been taken in that direction.

TRIP FOR HEALTH.—We learn that the Rev O W. Izer, pastor of the Taylor street M E church intends to start for the Sound country on next Tuesday. He will be absent from his post of duty about four weeks. Declining health has rendered a trip and temporary cessation from labor necessary. Several clergymen will officiate during his absence.

CHURCH SOCIABLE.—In view of the Pastor of the Taylor street M E Church leaving for Victoria this week, a social re-union will be given by the ladies on Tuesday evening May 28th, in the basement of the Church thus enabling his friends to meet with him before his departure. Admission free.

BOUND OVER.—A man named Hankins was examined on last Saturday before the Justice of the Peace for Sandy Precinct for an assault with intent to commit bodily harm on the person of J M. Stott. The defendant was held to await the action of the grand jury in the sum of $1 000.

TICKET OFFICE.—The ticket office for the sale of tickets to the three grand concerts to be given by Miss Anna Mehlig will be opened on Friday morning next at 9:30 o'clock at Gray's music store. See notice.

PERSONAL.—Mr C E Tilton of New York, one of the firm of Ladd & Tilton, arrived in this city overland from California a few days ago. He will remain but a short time.

RETURNING.—Among the passengers on board the steamer John L Stephens we observe the name of W L Halsey Esq. He returns to this State after a few weeks absence.

WHOLESALE GROCERS.—In another column will be seen the card of Messrs Phillips Tabor & Co, wholesale grocers and tea dealers, 310 and 312 Front street, San Francisco.

PREPARE.—Prepare to secure your seat for the coming concert, as Miss Mehlig sailed for this port yesterday morning, and will arrive here on Wednesday night.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

The Court House was filled to overflowing on last Saturday evening to listen to the address by Hon E L Applegate, of Eugene. Many persons were unable to obtain admission to the court room and many after getting inside were unable to secure seats and had to stand in the aisles during the entire speech, which lasted over an hour and a half.

The speaker was introduced by Jacob Stitzel Chairman of the County Central Committee and at once proceeded to the work before him. To attempt anything like a full report of his speech is out of our power and we can only give something like an outline of some of the principal points which were made. He did not desire to abuse those men who were his political opponents, for personal derelictions are not confined to those of any one class or party. When the land offices were turned over to the Republicans ten years ago the business was seven years behindhand, while the Democrats who had filled these offices had been engaged in hunting up the right to rebel. He had seen every legislative body that had assembled in Oregon for thirty years past, but the last one had no precedent in all that time. But of the venality and corruption and class legislation by the Assembly of 1870 the people were already well posted, and he would devote but little to that subject. The litigant act was simply an outrage on the rights of the people and was no more founded in right than would be a law to compel us to buy our sugar and coffee at a particular store.

It was perhaps proper in the abstract that the Locks and Dam at the falls of the Willamette be built, but the objection which the people make is not to the object but the means and manner of its accomplishment. No right was given to the Democracy to rob the School Fund of $200,000 and place it in the hands of a few Democratic leaders for the purpose of enabling them to make "big money" by owning and controlling the Locks. The law, as the speaker understood it allows the Lock Company the use of the $200,000 for twenty years, they paying ten per cent of the net proceeds from tolls to the State, and at the expiration of the franchise turning the property over to the State at its then value, which would probably be a million dollars, less the $200,000 donated by the Legislature. Thus the Company had all the advantages of the contract, and no security given for the payment of the 10 per cent. The right would remain, but the power to enforce it would be gone for when the Locks were finished and the work received by the Executive, the bond became null and void. He very seriously doubted that the claim of the Democrats that the $200 000 had been invested in the best manner was correct, but thought that had the State taken the matter in its own hand and built the Locks and owned them in trust for the School Fund, it would have been better. This could have been done, and then every citizen who paid a toll at its passage would have the satisfaction of knowing that he was helping to swell a great and grand fund for the education of the people, to extend the light of knowledge and science, and to battle against darkness and ignorance.

He next paid his attention to the Swamp Land Act of the Legislature. He was Surveyor General of Oregon at the time of its passage, and had much experience in dealing with the swamp land grabbers, and recollected with what eagerness and earnestness they were seeking these tracts. They had in many instances discovered swamps where no one had ever suspected swamps to exist before. They had taken the whole of Fort Klamath, and tried to "get away" with it. The Democrats claimed that Republicans were taking much advantage of the swamp land bill, and that if the law was wrong those Republicans were as bad as the Democrats and Grover's chances of going to the United States Senate depended on his ability to argue this profound proposition. He argued that the title of these lands were still in the Government of the United States, and that the whole action of the Oregon Legislature was not only wrong in principle but premature. It was something like the disposal of the lands in California by the Spaniards in an early day, which caused so much trouble with the titles of that State. After relating some pointed anecdotes in regard to the manner in which the swamp land business was managed, he proceeded to argue that the old doctrines of Democracy had been argued into the back ground by a system of argument which no logical mind would deny. When a proposition had been demonstrated and its truth or falsity shown by a logical process the attempt to revive the contrary of the facts deduced was absurd, and men were right in making it the object of ridicule. The Democrats all over the Nation had said that Republicanism violated a fundamental law in passing the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, and charged that these were subversive of the liberties of the people; two years ago they had come before the people making these allegations. Now they admit the correctness of the doctrines which they then declared were false, and upon this admission they were precluded by all known rules of law or metaphysics from ever attempting to revive them. What the attrition of truth had worn away, and the march of progress had outstripped, and the logic of events pushed into the department of the absurd as they had the Democratic dogmas of the past, were an attempt made to revive them it would from all reasonable minds, receive only contempt and ridicule. He had made a sort of diagnosis of the political situations two years ago and prognosticated that a demand would be made for a "new deal," and he was often asked why he did not support it. His reason was that it assumed too much the appearance of the man who made the attempt to drive his old blind horse toward a flock of wild geese, in the mean time keeping up just behind the horse with his shotgun just ready to give the geese a broadside when near enough. The horse was perfectly innocent of harmful intentions toward the geese, but the man had vengeance dire in his heart. So the "new deal" had brought things politically around to something like the same shape. The Republicans could see Horace Greeley and the sore headed crowd coming on to the fray, and unlike the geese they could see right behind them the keen, shrewd cunning Democracy thirsting to get hold of the offices. If any better order of things could be had he was willing to work and vote for it but he failed to see it in the Cincinnati movement. The measure of reform which was destined to accomplish the most substantial good was the punishment of all rogues and embezzlers of the public moneys. This was one of President Grant's steps in civil reform and let him be supported by the people in this. Let them when a villain has been discovered and it has been proven that he has got away with millions upon millions of the people's money, let such thieves not be able to come up again as officers, backed by twelve thousand majority as was Tweed of New York, whom the Democrats punished by electing him a State Senator by such a large majority.

The speaker said but little in regard to our county politics, but thought the effect of the Dolly Varden arrangement would be to effectually dissolve the Democratic party in this county. It was doubtless a ruse on the part of the policy men among the Democrats to take the past along with them behind Horace Greeley. Just when the Democrats claimed we were in great danger of being swallowed up by a monster monopoly and our salvation depended upon the preservation of the party and the support of the Democratic measures, they had abandoned the party and were willing to do anything or follow any leader whenever they saw any show of success. He praised the administration of President Grant and showed by comparison that the ratio of the amount of revenue collected to the amount lost by dishonest officials under Grant had been much greater than under the Democratic Presidents. Several of these had defaulted, and been tried and punished, and in many other cases the government had been saved from all loss by the sufficiency of their bonds. But no one ever heard that the bonds of a defaulting Democrat had been declared forfeited. They generally had that thing prepared beforehand and the sureties were generally insolvent or the wording of the bond legally insufficient. When the rebellion broke out there were thousands of Democratic office holders throughout the country who proved defaulters to the General Government, but not one had ever made good the loss of a single cent to that Government.

Mr Applegate's speech was interspersed with just enough of the humorous of which he is the master, to make it lively and entertaining as well as instructive. He closed with a glowing description of our progress as a State and the march of improvement in our midst, and said that with a proper system of legislation and a liberal encouragement of every industry tending to all this advancement and push forward the star of progress, the evils and inconveniences of poverty might be driven away and the poor lifted up the [illegible] and knowledge, and with helping hand to hand would scatter the mists of darkness before and shed the full light of higher [illegible] sunshine on all our future.

THE NESMITH RATIFICATION

The announcement frequently made through the columns of the Herald that J W Nesmith would address his fellow Democrats from the [illegible] on last Saturday evening, had the effect to draw together a small, very indifferent and not remarkably enthusiastic crowd. Truthfully the reverse can be stated. There was neither enthusiasm nor concerted action among those who stood around the street corners. All appeared to have been attracted by the music of a band and a lofty curiosity to see what was going on. After delay and great labor the mountain brought forth the [illegible] in use by the speaker of the evening. Mr Nesmith came out, and leaning familiarly against an awning post, began by addressing the gaping crowd as "My Fellow Citizens." Here he was interrupted by a strangled yell from the throat of a drunken soldier who was standing at one of the street corners, who cried "Hurrah for Nesmith!" Shouts of "hear, hear" restored silence, and the speaker proceeded by saying that in response to an invitation he had come to the city to address his political friends and enemies upon the State and National issues of the day. But as he was laboring from a severe cold, and the evening gave promise of inclemency he felt unable to do himself and his subject justice by talking in the open air. No building suitable for the purpose could be procured on that evening, so he would decline to address them farther on that occasion. He would however, designate next Tuesday evening at Oro Fino Theater as the place for his speech. He said in conclusion that as some of the newspapers had maliciously assailed him and slandered his character because he did not own one himself, he proposed to issue an extra paper devoted to his own vindication on that day. Right here some one plucked the coat sleeve of our reporter and suggested that he "guessed old Nes intended to charter the Herald for that day and have it illustrated in his (Nes') own happy chaste and peculiar style." This conjecture was given the greater show of plausibility by the fact that immediately following this announcement, a whispered consultation took place between the Col, who it is currently reported drives the [illegible] quill of the Herald, in which the latter gentleman was frequently observed to nod his head affirmatively. Some two or three noisy fellows attempted to give three cheers to the retiring speaker but the effort cost so much labor and was so agonizing to the spectators that it was abandoned.

Numbers began to disperse, supposing that the "exhibition" was over, and the East Portland Band at that moment came along up the street, playing, and on the way to the Court House, where General Applegate was to speak, and carried away the more respectable portion of the crowd. The determination by these advocates of the People's ticket, however, was to "ratify," although the cold south wind and the very uncomplimentary attendance had dampened Nesmith's ardor and caused him to decline to speak. A band of music had been hired and a half cord of wood purchased, so there was no alternative but to allow the "show" to proceed. Soon some one in the squad called out "Bob Ladd," whereupon a lean leathery cadaverous looking gentleman answered and stood forth. His speech could only be such an oratorical effort as Bob Ladd could be expected to make. It was the old whangdoodle tune about "one man power," being gulped down, "grasping monopolist," "the dear people's rights and liberties to be absorbed," "corruption at the polls," etc.

The obese quill driver of the Herald next came forward. He was afflicted, like the preceding speaker, with distorted fancies, fears and cares that the whole country was in the hollow of one man's hands, and that that monster intended to close his fingers tight and hard and crush every thing. He closed his remarks with a very brilliant peroration, and subsided.

Next in order came Judge Shattuck, who was much alarmed on account of the change that had taken place in Oregon. Formerly things were different here. The country was peaceful and happy. Nothing disturbed its placidity. But now the era of incorporations had come and the people were in danger. A corporation was running a line of steamships to San Francisco and Puget Sound, a corporation was building railroads among us, and disturbing the ancient course of things in the State, a corporation here owned hacks and drays, a corporation had gone into real estate business, a corporation was manufacturing tubs and pails at Oregon City. Could any one see these things and not be alarmed for the liberties of the country? (At this point Mr Sam Vowles, who supported the Judge on the left and who evidently had become greatly alarmed lest the commercial interests of the country should be ruined, and its resources strangled, proposed three cheers.) The Judge continued in the same strain for a while, and subsided.

Judge Strong was called out and spoke for a short time. The only deviation he made from the old track followed by preceding speakers about the yelp, "down with corporations," was the point of that he was neither the retained attorney of the King nor yet a Sunday school teacher like a certain other gentleman on the Republican ticket.

B L Norden, whose claims to oratory are too well established to require comment, next raised his voice against the one man usurpation, at or which he was laid on the shelf.

A young attorney, sometimes known as J H Newby, of salmon hued whiskers, Websterian head and a corpulent tendency, stood forth unbidden and commenced a most profound and learned diatribe on political ethics. Some wise discreet fellow who saw from appearances that the small crowd was in no proper condition to appreciate such a labored effort gently plucked the hem of his nether garment and intimated that a back seat would be eminently proper at that crisis. Newby, with more than ordinary penetration, perceived the general drift of his monitor's hint and immediately absented.

By this time, the band had been "played out," the crowd had gradually diminished until very few remained and the light of the bon fire were waning [illegible] so that by a sort of reciprocal [illegible] the "Nesmith Ratification" was among the things of the past.

[illegible] STEAMSHIP COMPANY.—Articles of incorporation of the above entitled company were filed in the office of the County Clerk on last Saturday. The company state the enterprise, object and business to be to purchase [illegible] a line of steamships with all their furniture to engage with the same in navigating the waters of the Pacific ocean to and from the ports of Portland and Astoria to San Francisco and to the Straits of Fuca, the waters of Puget Sound and the Gulf of Georgia and on the Columbia river and the Wallamet river, also to Sitka in Alaska Territory and to Victoria, Vancouver Island, Olympia etc. The steamers are to transport passengers and freight to and from said ports. They still further propose to run a line of steamboats on the waters of the Wallamet and Columbia rivers and tributaries. The principal office of the company is to be situated in Portland Oregon. The amount of capital stock is $3 000 000 divided into 30 000 shares at the par value of $100 per share. The duration of the company is to be fifty years. The incorporators are Alexander P Ankeny, H C Leonard and Charles H D[illegible] of this city.

EN ROUTE.—The steamer John L Stephens sailed for this port from San Francisco yesterday with freight and the following passengers: W I Halsey, Miss Mumford, Mrs H B Davidson, E S Blackwell, [illegible] Mosley, R M Wilburn and wife, Mrs J H [illegible] and sister, W S Putney, J B Montgomery, J Michaels, C Tenive, H Garrett, J J Johnson, H Foster Jr, F W Liddle, Mr J M Allen and daughter, Mrs Capt Babbitt, J Field, wife and son, Dr Davis, U S A, A C Niles, Lieut Rockwell, U S A, A Schlusser and wife, W W Conkey and family, H H Effinger and family, Dr F A Effinger and family, Miss Gould, Miss F Bell, J P Lee and family, Miss E Holmes, W Andersen, Miss M M Morgan and two children, W Dustott and wife, F Bagley and wife, Mrs E F Stannard and child, Mrs L A Teller, Mrs C Phelps, Miss R Fitting, F M Pitting, G C Tutewiler and wife, R Buesinger, Miss C Bedsop, Miss E Evans, G F Meagher, Mrs Jas Hanes and three children, N H Imbree, A B Clason, H J Hull and family, J B Crawford and wife, Miss J Burke, Mrs J B Taylor, Mrs W S Griswold, Miss M Norris, H Brooks and family, G Brooks, C Hogue, F Brooks, Ching Poo, Miss Anna Mehlig, Mrs M Gray, A B Mitting, W B Blackwell and wife, J McCraken.

THAT BANNER.—A strip of plain canvas, about ten feet long and two feet wide, on which had been painted the words "People's Ticket" was stretched across Morrison street between Front and First on last Saturday evening. At the time a stiff gale was blowing so that it was necessary to tie a brickbat to each of the lower corners to hold it down, so that people could read what was on it. The words "Headquarters" and "Sam Vowles" were also painted at each corner near where the brickbats were tied. Now we submit if the object of that banner is not ambiguous, to say the least. Is it an advertising medium got up to capture drinks or voters, or both? Can some of the advocates of the "Dolly Varden" come to the front, and tell why that piece of canvas is flung to the winds? We give it up. Yesterday as we chanced to pass along, we observed it still stretched. It is a nuisance. It ought to be taken down. As a banner it is a sick looking affair and as an advertisement it isn't a success. Such a banner ought to defeat any party or burst up any firm.

THE ORATOR.—As has been announced the oration on the occasion of Decoration Day by the G A R, to take place at the Court House on next Thursday evening, will be delivered by Colonel David Taggart, of this city. We learn that Mr Taggart has expended great care and considerable time in the preparation of this address, and it is safe to predict that it will be one of the finest efforts of that pleasing and cultivated speaker.

FIRE.—An alarm for fire was sounded from No 1's engine-house about 1 o'clock yesterday. A dense volume of smoke was seen to issue from the chimney of Mr S D Smith's residence, near the corner of Morrison and Fourth streets at present occupied by Mr J F Foster. The fire companies were on the ground with a very creditable promptness, but were not called into requisition. A quantity of paper was ignited in the fire place, which led to the alarm.

CANE PRESENTATION.—Mr J C Johnson, clerk on the steamer Isaac Thompson, was presented yesterday with an elegant gold headed cane valued at $50, by his friends. The presentation speech was made by Mr F Plummer and was responded to by the recipient in a very neat manner.

ACCEPTED.—Colonel B B Tayler, editor of the Herald has received and accepted the invitation to deliver the annual address before the literary societies of the Wallamet University on the 2[illegible]th of next month.

[illegible] editorial [illegible] to Mechanics and [illegible] [illegible] the uphill [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] What [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] is more than [illegible] He [illegible] in the recollection of [illegible] editor and his immediate [illegible] mitted or [illegible] done anything which would militate against the proud distinction which is theirs to [illegible] of being a peaceable law abiding and honorable portion of [illegible] munity? Such an adjuration as the [illegible] comes with a very bad grace from a [illegible] journal whose columns for the past few days have been charged with language in [illegible] goading these very same men [illegible] infraction of the law, in short to inaugurate mob and lynch law amongst us. Is it for this he calls upon them to be "brave and loyal men" to steep their hands in the blood of their fellow citizens and to call down ruin and disgrace upon our fair city, which has but fairly started on the road to commercial prosperity Workingmen of Portland beware of these insidious teachings

It has been suspected, for some time past that the editor of the Herald has been afflicted with hydrocephalous, or some other brain disorder, to account for some of the foolish vaporings which have appeared in the columns of that paper If aught was wanting to convince any one of this fact the following, which appeared in the article above referred to is amply sufficient The second paragraph commences thus "Many of you (mechanics and laboring men) are in the employ of Ben Holladay Why are you so? Does he employ you for your advantage or his own? He expects to profit by your labor or he would discharge you in an hour If you were all to abandon him to morrow he would be helpless as an infant, and would whine like a whipped dog His steamboats would stop, his cars would stop, his work on the railroads would stop, his drays would stop, and he would lay helpless at the feet of indignant labor" Oh! for the genius of George Francis Train to equal such folly Was ever man before, credited with one half the average of human brains, guilty of such twaddle and nonsense as this? Making capital subservient to labor, the employe the master of the employer! Does the Herald employ its printers for their benefit or for its own If it made no profit by their labor would it still employ them or "discharge them in an hour"? The mechanics and laboring men of Portland and of Oregon or anywhere else are not to learn at this day what is the relation which capital bears to labor, or vice versa Nor are they to be told now by the Colonel who commands the army of the Herald that the industries of a nation are to stop when their edict goes forth that they will work no more It is not in the order of things that this should be The laboring men of every country have to toil for their daily bread Their hands have to provide the sustenance for themselves and families which more fortuitous circumstances have given the men of means influence and wealth The aggregation of this wealth supplies the capital to command labor Railroads steam boats, ships, canals, public buildings, etc are the result of this use of capital The laboring man is but the paid agent of capital in procuring this result The country is benefited where such industries are achieved, the capitalist is remunerated for the use of his wealth, and labor receives its share of the good done by receiving a just equivalent therefor. Capital and labor, in promoting industry, are dependent on each other Without capital the laborer would have no work, and without labor capital would be useless. But here mutual dependence ends The man of wealth is always provided for, while starvation stares the idle laborer in the face. Then let us hear no more of Ben Holladay, or any other capitalist, "lying helpless at the feet of indignant, insulted labor" Such things cannot be Labor is in excess of capital, and always will be The employes of Ben Holladay receive fair and reasonable wages for their labor and are satisfied If, in doing this, they are enriching him, are they not gainers? In any other employment the result would be the same

Wheat in Liverpool 12s 3d@12s 10d

The steamer Ajax sailed for San Francisco this evening at 3 o'clock, with a number of passengers and the following freight 140 gunnies flour 6 474 sks wheat 115 hf sks flour 3 352 qr sks flour 20 bxs eggs 2 bxs apples 862 hides 40 pkgs mdse 5 bales wool 72 kegs butter 109 hf bbls dried apples 6 kgs salmon Total 800 tons

Samples of Pails made of Ash from the factory of Bliss & Holladay Jr at Oregon City have appeared in the market They are remarkably handsome and being made of wood which is wholly free from acrid juices we doubt not will soon supersede Cedar and other Pails in market.

The desiccating north winds are again drying up the fields of California The Grain that promised well is withering before them The Sacramento Union says that the winds have already lessened the crop millions of bushels Their effect is marvelous The earth is robbed of its moisture in a few hours, the leaves on trees and shrubs are scorched silk worms die by thousands the hair on animals stand up and man is nervous with a surcharge of electricity

Flour continues to go forward to New York by rail in large quantities At last advices the top of the market for Oregon extras was $13 50 This is an advance Profits of shipments are now very fair

A letter from Hong Kong dated April 12th says "The bark Edward James (of Portland Oregon) sailed from here for Saigon 30th March If all goes well she may be expected here in about five weeks hence On her return, she will have to go either to San Francisco or Portland and we presume from $8 000 to $10 000 will easily be got for her

The Norrd Brabant will be the first ship to leave for your port this year We have bought this vessel from Captain Frost and she will now sail under English colors and will be commanded by Captain Whyte late of the ship Onward that was in your port three years ago We intend to keep her running between Portland and Hong Kong if she can be profitably employed The bark [illegible] is also on the berth for Portland to be despatched by us She will probably sail about six weeks hence The Alden Besse arrived here on the 9th instant all well and is already advertised to return to Portland Tonnage is still scarce to load at Manila for New York and the United Kingdom"

The total reduction of tariff and internal revenue by the bill agreed upon by the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives is $4,400 000

The San Francisco Bulletin of the 19th says "The quantity of Wool in this city is unusually large Since the 1st January we have received 25 000 bales from the interior nearly all of which has come to hand during the past six weeks. The shipments during the interval have been light owing to the unsatisfactory condition of the Eastern markets and the corresponding timidity of buyers Hence all the available warehouse room along the city front is now crowded with Wool and large [illegible] bales are still unhoused The railroad facilities will soon be taxed to their utmost in forwarding this Wool to New York and Boston
